the Grand Jury, and was brought to trial to-day.

Roundsman Gallagner described the arrest, and then Lawyer Miles, on behalf of Otto, caused a ripple of surprise by calling Yerkes to the witness-stand as a witness for the defense.

Yerked denied the policeman's statements, and declared he had never seen Otto deal in policy. His story was in direct opposition to the one he told when Otto was arrested.

After he had stepped down from the stand, Judge Moore ordered the court officers to lock him up on a charge of perjury. The District-Atterney was directed to take the matter before the Grand Jury.

The jury in the Otto case were out less than a half hour, and returned with a verdict of guilty. Otto was remanded for sentence.

The Steamship Company Now Asks Shippers to Foot the Bill. The trial of an action brought by the New York and Cuba Mail Steamship Company, against McKesson & Robbins the well-known druggists, to recover 8,412, was begun to day before Justice Ingraham and a jury, in the Supreme Court. It is a most unique action The plaintiffs allege that in October, 1887, the defendants shipped by the Company's steamship Orienfuegas, eight buxes of opium, billed simply as drugs.

The Cuban custom authorities discovered the opium, seized the vessel, and fined the owners $700 in Spanish gold. They sue for that amount with interest. The defendants reply that they sold the opium to one Fernandez, in Cuba, and that when it left their establishment it was properly marked and entered on the bills of lading.
